Make-It! @ Your Library

Public libraries have become community centers where ideas can be shared and developed. The mission of many libraries is to give patrons access to lifelong learning and educational skills. In conjunction with the Maker Movement, librarians are here to help you create, collaborate and innovate. By promoting hands-on activities, community members will be engaged as participants who can share in these new discoveries. If you can imagine it, the library can help you “Make-It” happen! Make sure to visit us at this year's Eastern Long Island Mini Maker Faire!

Charles Sumner Bunn Decoys

Tuesday, May 29

7:00 - 8:30 PM

Jamie Reason and Joseph Jannsen, contributing writers on Long Island decoys and decoy makers for Decoy Magazine present a researched and illustrated presentation on the extraordinary life and art of master Shinnecock carver Charles Sumner Bunn (1865-1952) “the greatest decoy carver who ever lived.”
